Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-3 and 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Seyyed in view of Patel et al. (US 6,414,518).

3. With respect to claim 1, figures 3-5 of Seyyed discloses a programmable a programmable circuit, comprising:

At least one fuse address driver (inherent given that a fuse driver is needed to program antifuse in figure 5);

At least one programmable voltage supply driver (inherent given that the integrated circuit provide several different voltages in the circuit for various standards);

Means to program the input/output buffers to a desired configuration (the circuit to program the antifuse to have desired configuration in figure 5).

The apparatus of Seyyed does not specifically show the buffer as an I/O buffer as claimed. Figure 22 of Patel discloses a buffer having both input (2220) and output (top) features for the purpose of delivering and receiving signal. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill of art at the time the invention was made to have implemented the buffer of Seyyedy with input and output feature as taught by Patel for the purpose of receiving and delivering signal as the same output node.

4. With respect to claim 2, Seyyedy shows a single circuit. However, there are many similar circuits of figure 5 in the apparatus of Seyyedy.

5. With respect to claim 3, figure 5 of Seyyedy discloses a set of programmable antifuse matrix cells (534, 536, 538, 540).

6. With respect to claim 6, figures 3-5 of Seyyedy discloses the buffer include antifuse matrix and programmable output driver.

7. With respect to claim 7, the means to program includes programmable antifuse matrix cells (figure 5).

8. With respect to claim 8, the desired configuration includes a plurality of I/O standards (see abstract).

Allowable Subject Matter

9. Claims 4 and 5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

10. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

With respect to claim 3, in addition to other elements in the claim, the prior art does not teach a circuit having a set of programmable antifuse matrix cell, each set of includes 16 programmable antifuse matrix cells.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Response to Arguments

11. Applicant's arguments filed 1/2/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

With respect to arguments made by applicant, applicant did not address any issues with respect to the claim rejections. The rejections are based on the claim language and all the claimed elements were addressed in the rejections. Applicant argues that the prior art is a DRAM circuit it is not the same as the claimed invention. This is correct, however, the prior art discloses all the claimed elements in the claim language. The claim language is the main issue not the specifications.

Conclusion

12. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

Art Unit: 2819
